

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A glove has a palmer portion and finger portions configured for placement of a base layer of 5 the palmer portion in contact with a palm of a hand when the glove is fully engaged. A topper layer of the palmer portion is fixedly engaged over the base layer with a resilient pad engaged between the base and topper layers. The resilient pad is outlined by a first stitching of elongated oval shape, and is parted by a second, approximately linear stitching extending at an angle across the palmer portion in correspondence with a lateral fold in the palm of the 10 hand.